

From one of the oldest blocks planted in the limestone soils of Josh Jensen's remote mountaintop estate, this mingles scents of wild strawberry, woodsmoke and herbal carrot-top. It's a pinot noir with uncommon structural fortitude, warming in its ripeness but powerfully mineral, best left in a cool cellar for a decade or more so that its wild edges can harmonize. (321 cases)

92 points

